Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

Claims 1-7 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Potega.

Potega teaches a power supply that detects the power requirements of an electrical device and configures itself to provide the correct power to the device. A switch used with the connector creates various circuits and is controllable by the power supply, the electrical device, by signal from the electrical device or by a third device.

The device taught by Potega differs from the claims only by not being said to have a memory device in the cable assembly.

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to use the teachings of Potega to meet the claims, because the teachings have memory devices connected to the interface between the battery 53 and the device to be powered, with one of the memory devices shown to be connected to cable elements 34-39.
